State, Federal Approval Placed on Water, Milk

Canyon Is One of Fifty Towns in Texas Receiving Approval of State Health Department

MILK RATE 98%

Few Towns in Nation Are Given Higher Rating of Dairies and Enforcement Milk Rules

The water and milk supplies of Canyon have been given state and federal authority because of the quality and purity of these products.

Only 50 towns in Texas have been approved as to the water supply. Inspection of the city's water was recently made by the Texas State Department of Health and the purity of the supply was approved. The city has been sent signs, "Public Water Supply Approved," which may be displayed as a result of this investigation.

The rating given the water supply is A or excellent.

Federal authorities have passed upon the milk supply of Canyon and given a rating of 98%. Few towns in the United States have received a higher rating on milk.

Twenty-six items of sanitation are considered in this rating. All dairies furnishing milk to the public were carefully inspected by federal authorities. Consideration is given the enforcement of the standard milk ordinance through the monthly investigations made by the inspectors. Quality of the milk furnished the public is also taken into consideration.

A regular monthly inspection system has been maintained throughout the past two years on dairies, and the results obtained in this high rating of the dairy products were highly gratifying.

City officials were highly pleased in receiving these reports from both the state and federal authorities as the purity of the water and milk supply of the town.

IF AND SO—

With six months yet to go before politics really should get all hot and in a big stew, Texas seems to have a pretty warm political battle underway right now.

Down in Mexico this week Governor Allred announced that he was for President Roosevelt for a third term. This might be interpreted that the Governor generally favors third terms, and will be willing to make the race himself for a third term.

Jim Ferguson has hit the trail and is making speeches over the state. Jim stands for more liberal old age pensions, for a sales tax and for $22 or more school apportionment. He is making a strong bid for a very large block of voters—those over 65 years of age; those near 65 years of age; those who have always deplored the political cowardice of political leaders opposing the sales tax; and the school people who are following the State board of Education, a board which is dominated by Ferguson appointees.

Of course Governor Allred will make Fergusonism the issue, should both be in the race. Allred will defend his administration during which he is on record as being opposed to the more liberal old age assistance; opposed to the sales tax; opposed to the $22 school apportionment.

The two red-headed candidates, Bill McCraw and Col. Ernest Thompson will find themselves between the fire of these two bitter enemies and extreme opposites. McCraw has been making speeches for two years, all of them aiming at the race for Governor. Thompson is working quietly, building a strong organization which has the backing of the oil fraternity of the state.

Great things are going to happen in a political way in Texas during 1938.

A definite fight is being made over the nation on venereal diseases. The nation has been shocked at the wide spread of these diseases while the public shut its eyes to the ravages of the disease and thought that it was an improper subject for public discussion. Venereal diseases have spread largely because of the ignorance of the people, and their unwillingness to seek proper medical treatment once the disease was contracted. Fake medicines and the foolish practice of legitimate physicians to hide their light under a bushel have caused a fertile field for ineffective treatment of the diseases. 87% of the people of the nation have signified their approval of giving blood tests to all Americans. While the government is engaged in such an extensive program of social welfare, it certainly would be a very wide policy to give free medical examination with a view of curbing the diseases which are creating such wide spread wreckage in the human race.

The drive is on to collect delinquent taxes in most counties in Texas. Those who make no effort to pay their taxes can expect little sympathy from those who sacrificed and paid the taxes they owed. Just suppose all property owners would assume the attitude of not paying taxes until forced to do so? Just what would become of government? Government must go on if civilization is to progress and our public institutions survive. During the depression a lot of property owners took advantage of the situation by refusing to pay taxes, and the state became sympathetic and remitted penalty and interest in order to collect money for operation. As a result there are many who formed the very bad habit of not paying taxes and are still hoping that they will be freed of the penalty and interest on the amounts they owe.

So far as The News has been able to ascertain, there is no strong fight against any of the six constitutional amendments which will be presented to the voters on Aug. 23rd, excepting No. 3, which seeks to abolish the salary system for district and state officers, and bring back the old fee system. The people of Texas cannot forget in two years the greed and graft which was practiced in some of the large counties of Texas under the fee system when some county officers made as much as $45,000 per year from their jobs. The fee system was condemned from one end of Texas to the other. There is no reason for refusing to give the salary system a chance to be worked out, when it has been so conclusively proven that the fee system is a failure.

Wheat farmers who do not consult local committees before planting this fall may find that they have violated the new rule which will be made for 1938 payments. The payments will be made, according to a bill which has passed congress, but payments will be figured on the basis of acres seeded rather than upon the basis of acres harvested. Overplanting is the curse of any farm program in which the government seeks to come to the aid of the farmer. Farmers have the best friend in the White House that they have ever had in the history of the nation. Cultivating this friendship and co-operating with the President is the surest way of having this friendship continued during the coming three years.

The people of Texas have only 10 more days in which to decide about the merits of the six constitutional amendments which will be voted upon August 23rd. At the very best, not more than 50% of the normal voting strength of the state will go to the polls. Those who have a poll tax receipt should make up their minds now to vote in this election. It is very necessary that those who have an interest in the affairs of their state take an active part in the fundamental government of the state.

Most of West Texas has been placed again in the "white spot" of the business map. This indicates that the Plains sections is in better condition by comparison than most sections of the Southwest. This also means an influx of grafters and promoters. Some of them have already carried easy money away from this section under the guise of advertising. Few business men are advertising experts, and often are the easy victim of smooth tongued promoters. Refer all such schemes to the Chamber of Commerce before you bite. The man who lives on suckers will not submit his shady scheme to the investigation of the Chamber of Commerce.

MAC

The farm block in congress threatens the President's program unless farm legislation is passed this session. The President is not to blame. Congress has the Jones bill before it, but nothing will be done this session. The soil conservation measure has been continued through 1941. It looks like some members of congress are scared to vote upon the measures which are on the President's "must list," and are using the farm program as an excuse of getting out of Washington. The President has assured his support to a minimum price fixing measure with the provision that acreage shall be controlled. This sounds like a sensible program.

President Roosevelt has congress guessing. He asked for a ruling from the Attorney General as to whether he could make a recess appointment of a member of the Supreme Court. Senators took this to mean that the President does not intend filling the vacancy until after congress adjourns. For this reason senators who are opposed to the court reform measure are afraid to seek early adjournment. They wish to be in Washington when the appointment. The senate may have whipped the President, but so far has failed to out-smart him on political movements.

Senator Tom Connally announced in the senate the other day that the people were tired of congress and wanted congress to adjourn and go home. If Senator Connally had not worked so hard during seven months fighting court reform there might be some point to his argument. Members of Congress have a pretty good job, and the members want to be returned. But for seven months about all that has been accomplished was killing a most needed reform measure. 63% of the people of this nation think that congress should buckle down and pass the President's program before adjourning.

The state is starting another million dollar institution to take care of the rapidly increasing number of insane in the state. PAINT HEADQUARTERS

"The Rest of the Record"

BY JAMES V. ALLRED
Governor of Texas

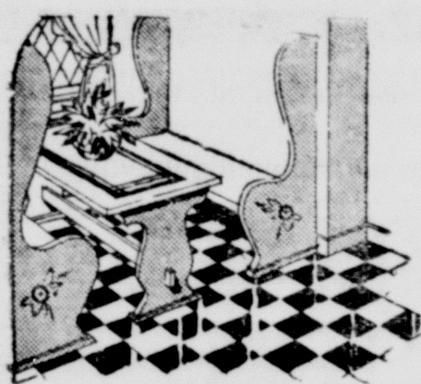

SAN LUIS POTOSI, MEXICO, August 7, 1937.

In Texas we boast of our southern hospitality; in Mexico, the people don't boast of it; they live it! From the moment when Mrs. Dominguez, wife of the Mexican vice-consul at Laredo, presented a beautiful bouquet to Mrs. Allred as we crossed the international boundary until now, I have never witnessed such courtesy, such hospitality as has been extended to us on every hand.

As I told you last week, the Mexican Government invited us to be their guests, even furnishing transportation over the railroad. We have passed through the capital cities of three Mexican states and at each one great crowds, including the Governor, the Mayor, representatives of the military and the business men have met us at the station with a band, presented beautiful bouquets to Jo Betsy (my wife), and given us the very best of entertainment as long as we were with them. Of course, we realize this is an honor they are extending not to Jimmie Allred, but to the Governor of Texas; and that why I'm prouder than ever before of the high honor the people have bestowed upon us.

We spent one day at Monterrey, capital of Nuevo Leon. It is quite modern and somewhat Americanized. We saw many Texas people there, most of them tourists, of course. We visited one of the most beautiful and modern hospitals I have seen anywhere, the gift of a fine old Mexican gentleman, a Mr. Muguerza. One of the finest glass factories in the world is located in Monterrey. It is almost unbelievable to see how they melt sand in furnaces, then drop it in red-hot pieces into various kinds of molds where it is shaped as it cools into bottles, vases, pitchers, plates and glassware of every character. As I watched this preparation put through the burning fire, yet emerge fine-spun and clean and beautiful, it made me wonder if sometimes human beings aren't put through a torturing, searing fire—a great sorrow, for instance—that they may emerge, tested and tried, a finer, cleaner character.

American money is of course,

Science Hopes to Establish 'Lie Detector' as Sure-Fire Method of Combatting Crime

THE combined results of scientific and criminal research, plus the application of some advanced psychology, have produced what eventually may become the greatest aid to crime detection yet discovered.

Although not at all new, the apparatus called the "lie detector" has been coming into increasing use, not only as a means of establishing the guilt of a suspect, but also as a means of proving an accused person's innocence.

Dr. M. W. Marston, who made psychological studies of falsehoods at Harvard and Columbia universities as far back as 1914, probably was the first to conduct serious experiments with "lie detectors." Later research was done by John A. Larson of the Berkeley, Calif., police force, and Prof. Leonard Keeler of the Northwestern university school of crime prevention.

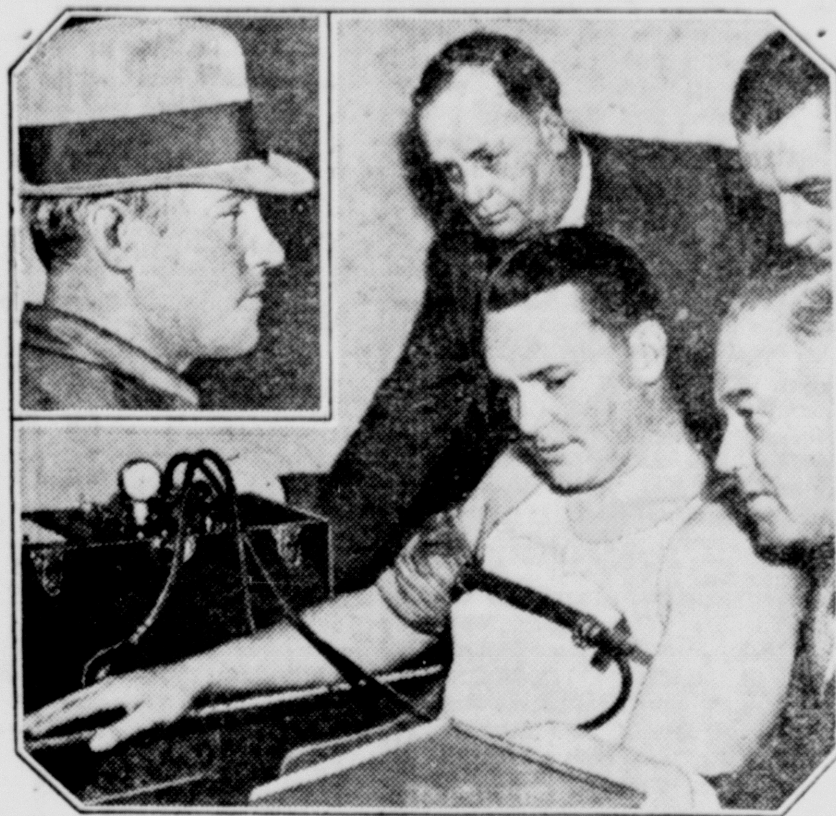

The mechanics of the lie detector, while the product of much thought and experimentation, are really simple. A tube attached to the subject measures his respiration and another records his blood pressure. It is a fairly well-substantiated theory of science and psychology that when a man is questioned, his brain transmits impulses which react on his breathing and blood pressure.

IT is believed impossible for a man to control these automatic movements. Even if he refuses to answer a question put to him, his brain prepares the answer by transmission of these impulses.

Two needles trace the respiration count and blood pressure on paper as the test is made. As long as the suspect knows he is telling the truth, an even line is traced across the paper.

Deliberate lying, however, due to the action of secretions from the endocrine gland, will cause a distortion in the respiration and blood pressure, the result being a sudden irregularity in a tell-tale line.

The lie detector does not get false confessions by inspiring

This excellent illustration of the lie detector in action shows Berkeley, Calif., police officials giving the test to Jerome von Braun Selz, who was held in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Ada French a year ago. The tube around his chest records his respiration, while the contrivance on his arm measures his blood pressure. Inset is Joseph Nelson, whose claim that he had found $135,000 in liberty bonds was backed up by the lie detector in Chicago.

fear or pain. Rather its value lies in the work of a guilty conscience and the uncontrollable behavior of the glands which exert tremendous influence on human conduct.

Although courts of law have not accepted evidence based on lie detector tests as infallible, hundreds of cases have been decided by the tests.

Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois granted Abe Rapaport, condemned murderer, his request for a lie test. The test was made the very night the doomed man was to be executed. The usual routine questions were asked to establish the normal rate of respiration and blood pressure. The line ran smoothly. When asked if he had actually killed the victim, Rapaport denied the charge, but the cold, remorseless line took a jagged leap. Rapaport was electrocuted.

JOSEPH NELSON came to Chicago from Arizona, claiming he had found Liberty bonds worth $135,000 in a hole, and inquired if he could keep them.

Police, suspicious, subjected him to the test. The lie detector indicated Nelson was telling the truth and he was allowed to return to Arizona with attorneys, to claim the fortune.

Police in nearly all large cities now have access to lie detector machines. It is the hope of police authorities and scientists that lie detectors soon will become universal in use—and above all, accepted as positive evidence of guilt or innocence.

Public Food No. 1

Dairy farmers, since the days of Gail Borden's first factory, have progressed steadily in their methods of producing pure milk and keeping it sanitary.

All that science, modern equipment and trained men offer are used in Borden factories to back up the efforts of dairymen to guard milk's purity.

In helping to establish present high sanitary standards for milk, dairy farmers and distributors together have promoted public health, reduced infant mortality and placed milk and its products first in the food lists of the nation.

Senior Play Centers Around Campus Life At University

The Play, THE POOR NUT, sponsored by the summer graduating class is to be presented August 19 and 20 in the Education building auditorium.

The play centers around the life on the campus at Ohio State University, dealing in particular with one timorous soul who precipitates himself into more difficulty than any three people ordinarily get in to. His inferiority complex, coupled with the fact that he is a botanist, deal him plenty of misery before the end is reached. The poor student is a Phi Beta Kappa but would give anything to become a member of a social fraternity, which of course is impossible. . . but he does get a bid to a frat because of the fact that the organization needs scholarship. The complications that arise when his dream girl, to whom he has been writing letters of steaming love, appears and demands to see him, are such as to quell the exuberance in the more bold of people. His predicament, and the riotous moments that come when he strives to work a plausible way out, are such as to cause unceasing merriment, because everyone likes to laugh at the other fellow in his embarrassing moments, especially if he is unable to cope with the situation.

The cast is remarkably well chosen, and the direction under Mr. Leon Lassers is excellent. Members of the cast include a goodly portion of the senior class, since there is such a large group needed to stage the track meet, the grandstand scenes, and the formal dance at the Psi Sigma house after the track meet, in which the POOR NUT won the Gold Cup for his University. The auditorium will be air-cooled for both performances.

Cubs, Off to Poor Start, Now Appear Well on Their Way Toward National League Flag

BY IRVING DIX

SO the Chicago Cubs suddenly realized they were quite a ball club and went out and won themselves a National League pennant.

Well, not yet, that is—but they probably will, much to the intense disgust of Bill Terry's New York Giants, and Frankie Frisch and his alleged Gas-House Gang down in St. Louis—not to mention Pie Traynor and his hired hands, the Pittsburgh Pirates, who not so long ago had the sports scribes muttering to themselves about black magic, and how did Traynor get that way anyhow.

Naturally, you find certain diehards who figure the Bruins aren't in by a long shot, but each day finds Charley Grimm's lads just that much nearer to their goal. And when one stops to think that they got away to a flying start by dropping six of the first seven games they played this season their position on top of the senior circuit heap may be regarded as a little bit startling.

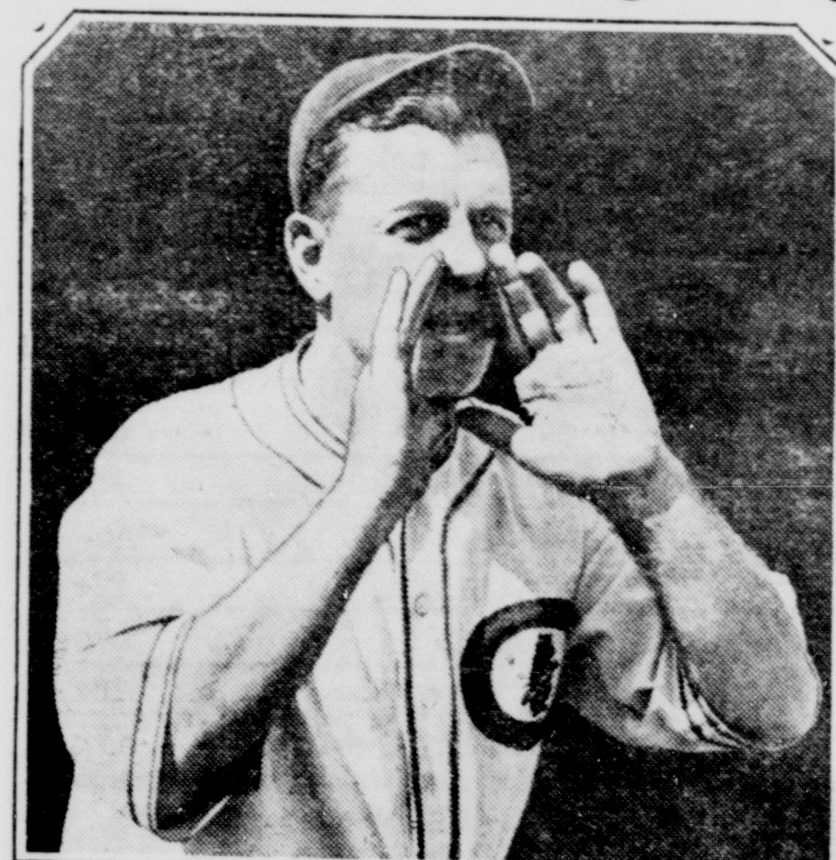

To be sure, much can happen between now and Oct. 3, when the present campaign draws to a close. Augie Galan might break a leg, Joe Marty could develop the gout, and maybe even worse could come to pass, but if the law of percentages means anything, the Cubs shouldn't falter. They've already had more than their share of injuries and other misfortunes, including the illness of Boss Grimm, during which time Gabby Hartnett piloted the club most capably.

And to what might the Bruins' apparent success be attributed? Well, it might be the climate, wholesale promises of fat bonuses, or just plain, downright good baseball.

First of all there are a couple of youngsters who have been lifesavers to the mound staff. Clay Bryant, a right-hander, has proved himself to be the most effective relief pitcher in the loop. And then there is Southpaw Clyde Shoun, who brings a smile of contentment to Grimm's face every time he works. Anyone who can beat the New York Giants three times in a row is okay with Charley.

Every once in a while, however, the pitchers find themselves in a spot where only a double play will help matters. That's where Billy Herman, Billy Jurgens, and Jimmy Collins come in.

Years ago Windy City fans chanted the famous: "Tinker to Evers to Chance." Now it's

"Herman to Jurgens to Collins" and the young keystone combination, aided by the inimitable Mr. Collins, who picks them out of the dirt, the air, and the umpire's pockets if necessary, can rightfully lay claim to being the slickest double-killing machinery in the league. And don't think that doesn't help.

COLLINS, incidentally, has been the answer to one of Grimm's major problems. The former Cardinal came along, stepped in as part of a very young infield and proceeded to become the steadying influence that was needed to bring the youngsters through the heat of a stiff campaign.

Folks, however, don't talk about the Cubs without talking about Gabby Hartnett, the finest backstop in the National League, and one of the smartest baseball heads in the business today.

When Grimm was forced out of action with illness, he turned the managerial job over to Gabby, and the veteran went out and acquitted himself nobly as a master-mind.

A real outfit, the Cubs. And it'll take nothing short of a miracle to head them off now.

Emmett Galloway In Talk To Rotarians On Parole System

Emmett Galloway of Huntsville talked Tuesday at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club on the work of the new pardons and parole system which was recently adopted in Texas as the result of the constitutional amendment taking this power from the hands of the governor. Vaughn Allen was in charge of the program. The Beacon Quartet of Amarillo sang a group of songs during the program.

Mr. Galloway, formerly of Amarillo, has had much experience in handling delinquency among boys. There are 6,349 convicts in the system, held within the walls at Huntsville and on the ten farms. On the 83,000 acres, 13,000 acres are planted to cotton this year, with prospects of a bale per acre. Among the inmates are 133 women, 36 being white, 2500 negroes, and 1600 white youths under 25 years of age.

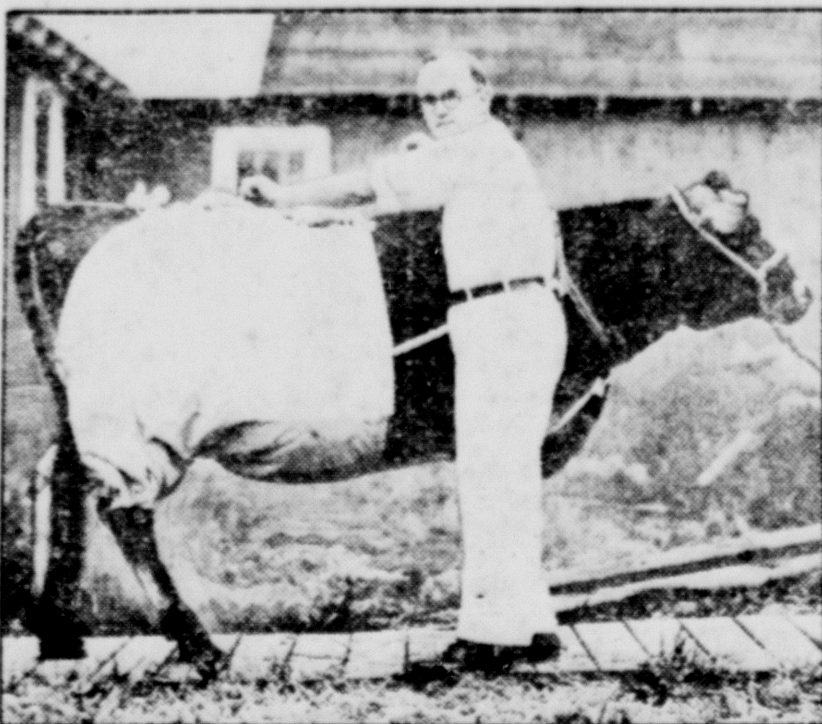

The hardened criminals are held on the Eastham farm. The men are trotted to the fields where they work for 11 hours and then trotted back. Since so many have recently escaped from this farm, the guards over the squads have been increased. The speaker criticized the shortsightedness of the legislature in the low pay given guards, and declared that efficient and honest guards could not be secured for the money available, $80 per month.

The system has packing and canning plants where much of the food is saved; makes all the clothing, shoes and furniture used in the system, and has a good printing plant.

The parole board seeks to find the forgotten men in the system—those without money and influence who want an opportunity to get out and make good in the world.

Visitors present in addition to the Beacon Quartet and Mr. Galloway were: Mrs. Galloway, F. A. Zimpher and B. I. Barfield, all of Amarillo; Mrs. Lee Johnson, Dan

Farmer, Labor Groups Look Forward to Coalition Party in Near Future

BY SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

WASHINGTON — Leaders of certain farmer and labor groups are hopefully planning a coalition party. A farmer's Non Partisan League is now planned to work in harness with Labor's Non Partisan League, a C. I. O. and A. F. of L. organization for political action.

Even the most optimistic of the farmer-labor organizers don't expect to have a party presidential ticket in 1940, but leaders of the movement believe there will be such a ticket in 1944.

The two groups are working closely together to help elect progressive candidates in 1938, and to take advantage of the anticipated break between conservatives and progressives of the Democratic party in 1940. A conference probably will be held in St. Paul soon, and representation there by farm delegates, progressive congressmen and labor league men, may serve as a gauge of the political strength this coalition promises.

From Minnesota, Wisconsin, the two Dakotas, Nebraska and Montana there has come assurance that there is spirit for a new political organization, and that each county of those states can produce a farmer who would be active in leadership.

UNFORTUNATELY for the new movement, it is widely believed that Labor's Non Partisan League is dominated by John Lewis and the C. I. O. But LNL claims that more than 50 members of its executive board are A. F. of L. officials, that more than half of all its officials are A. F. of L. men, and none of them has resigned.

Executive Vice President E. L. Oliver, who has been in charge of the league's affairs since George Berry quit as president, is an A. F. of L. member and former director of research for the A. F. of L. Brotherhood of Railway Clerks. The other side of the picture is that Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and John Lewis organized the league and installed Berry head of an A. F. of L. union, as president.

Labor's political strength was tested last year when many officials friendly to labor legislation were elected to office. As in the Populist, Granger and Bryan movements, farmers have shown in the past that they can organize effectively to get votes.

But the confidence of labor leaders and the few farm leaders who have formed an alliance may be destroyed if most farmers are found to believe that farmers and workers have fundamentally different interests.

A theory often advanced is that wage increases mean increased cost of goods farmers must buy, and higher food prices which farmers want mean lower real wages for workers. These differences may militate against any real political combine.

THOSE who have faith in a farmer-labor party argue that higher incomes for workers enables them to buy more farm products, and higher incomes for farmers enables them to buy more labor products.

They say both farmer and laborer can be made to appreciate that they have a common interest in obtaining the necessities of life at lower cost, that farmers with their problems of marketing and distribution, and workers with their problems of wages and hours should unite to eliminate waste, minimize profits and attack corruption and profiteering in business.

Except for the high optimism and the sincerity of its leaders, this latest farmer political movement has as yet little strength.
